Karl Theodore Bitter, Famous Sculptor, Dies

New York, April 10.—Karl Theodore Bitter, chief of the department of sculpture of the Panama Pacific exposition and one of the best known sculptors of this country, died in a hospital here today of injuries he suffered when he and Mrs. Bitter were run down last night by an automobile in Broadway. Mrs. Bitter's injuries are not serious.

Mr. Bitter was director of sculpture of the Buffalo exposition and chief of the department of sculpture of the St. Louis exposition. He had executed many important private commissions, including the statue of Carl Schurz here, and works in the homes of Collis P. Huntington, Cornelius Vanderbilt and other wealthy men. He designed the Astor gates for Trinity church here.

He was a member of the national institute of arts and letters and an academician of the national academy of design. Mr. Bitter was 47 years old, coming here in 1889 from Vienna, where he was born. His home was in this city.

A prudent mother is always on the watch for symptoms of worms in her children. Pale skin, lack of interest in play, and peevishness is the signal for WHITE'S CREAM VERMIFUGE. A few doses of this excellent remedy puts an end to the worms and the child soon acts naturally. Price 25c per bottle. Sold by Riter Bros. Drug Co.—Adv.

SUBMARINE CHASED HUNGARIAN PRINCE

New York, April 10.—Officers of the steamer Hungarian Prince, which reached here today from Shields, said that the steamer was pursued on February 24 by a German submarine off Beachy Head on the homeward passage from Bahia Blanca for London.

The weather was rough and when the periscope of the submarine was sighted the steamer put on full speed. The captain said he could not tell if a torpedo was fired, but thought the submarine was unable to get in a position to use one. She chased the steamer for some distance.

Bad breath, bitter taste, dizziness and a general "no account" feeling is a sure sign of a torpid liver. HERBINE is the medicine needed. It makes the liver active, vitalizes the blood, regulates the bowels and restores a fine feeling of energy and cheerfulness. Price 50c. Sold by Riter Bros. Drug Co.—Adv.

Blackness of the Crow.
It was satisfactorily established by the old writers that the crows get their blackness in punishment for their sins. It seems to have been a futile punishment, for there is no living thing that shows in its demeanourless evidence of a repentant spirit. Instead of being ashamed of their blackness, crows, as an Indian writer has said, "swagger in it, and pretend that they chose that exact shade for themselves."

MAKES 61 FEEL LIKE 16

"I suffered from kidney ailment for two years," writes Mrs. M. A. Bridges, Robinson, Miss. "I commenced taking Foley Kidney Pills about ten months ago. I am 61 years of age and feel like a 16 year old girl." Foley Kidney Pills invigorate weak and deranged kidneys, relieve backache, rheumatism and bladder trouble. Cache Valley Drug Co.—Adv.

Uncle Eben.
"Some men," said Uncle Eben, "don't realize how much patience and perseverance they have in their systems until they get ambitious to fill three-card rushes and inside straight."

A valuable dressing for flesh wounds, burns, scalds, old sores, rash chafed skin is BALLARD'S SNOW LINIMENT. It is both healing and antiseptic. Price 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Riter Bros. Drug Co.—Adv.

Oil Your Rubbers.
Before wearing your rubbers rub them well with vasoline, lard or sweet oil, letting it remain on for a day or two. The greater part will be absorbed by the rubber and the grease will prevent the rubber from breaking. The superfluous oil can be removed with a soft cloth.

If you cough all night you get no rest, nor does anyone else in the house. Keep within reach a bottle of BALLARD'S HOREHOUND SYRUP. It is then easy to stop the tickling which causes the cough, whenever it appears. Price 25c 50c and $1.00 per bottle. Sold by Riter Bros. Drug Co.—Adv.

PORTIERE OF CORN KERNELS

Superior to Those of Ordinary Construction Is the Invention of a Michigan Man.

A Michigan man has made a portiere of corn kernels which is, he declares, far superior to those made of beads or paper tubes used in making the ordinary Japanese kind. He takes ordinary field corn, says Popular Mechanics, and places the kernels in boiling water, where they soak for 24 hours, preparing only a little at a time, as they may sour. The kernels are then strung on No. 8 cotton thread, double for the needle. Each strand is made a foot longer than the doorway to allow for shrinking. Sound kernels are used and care is taken not to split them with the needle. The corn will shrink in drying and should therefore be examined and the kernels pushed together. A loop at one end of each string, all of the same length, is made and all strung on a pole. They are then ready for varnishing, which is done by dipping them in varnish warmed somewhat. They are then hung up to drain and dry. This must be thoroughly done and not too quickly. When dry they are hung on the pole in the door space. The ends of the threads can be clipped even as the kernels will not come off. They may be dyed any color and designs made of different colors of the corn. But the dyeing does not make as pretty a portiere, the experimenter thinks, as the plain color of the corn. The length of the strings may be made to suit the maker. A good method is to make them short in the center, increasing to full length at the sides.

TO SHOW RAVAGES OF PEST

"Potato Bug" of Immense Size Is One of the Attractions of the "Frisco Exposition.

One of the novel attractions at the Panama-Pacific exposition is a model of a potato bug as big as a barn, lying on its back and kicking and sprawling with lifelike realism. Its object is to show how the potato beetle performs its devastating work.

The model, scientifically accurate, which is included among the thousands of working models in the vast Horticultural palace, measures 40 feet in length, 20 feet in width and 40 feet from the floor to its moving feet. The framework is covered with orange and black in imitation of the beetle's coloring. Its eyes, composed of multiple facets, form the windows and show how the insect can see in a dozen directions at once.

Of the three rooms inside the model one is used as a lecture hall, in which moving pictures show the scourge of the potato patch at work and explain how it can be exterminated.

Slav Farmers.
The total number of Slavish farm operators in the United States, composed chiefly of Poles, Bohemians and Slovaks, will largely exceed one hundred thousand. This statement by an investigator of the bureau of immigration will surprise those who, though aware that the Slav newcomer has generally been reared on the small farms of Europe, are familiar with him only as an unskilled laborer. What is more, it is believed that the Slovak farmers in Arkansas, the Bohemians in Texas—a widely scattered colony of over fifty thousand—and the Slovaks of southern Virginia, should increasingly act as a magnet to draw to American lands the thousands of immigrants who return yearly to invest their money at $400 the acre in their fatherlands. Concerning both the ability of the Slavs to farm intelligently and their worth as citizens the report of the bureau leaves no doubt.—New York Evening Post.

A Modern Regulus.
There are some bright rays to illuminate the darkness, despair and desolation of the war. It is related in the dispatches that a Frenchman in prison in Germany, learning that his mother was dying, wrote to the emperor begging leave to go to her bedside and pledging his honor that he would return to Germany by the first of March. The Kaiser at once gave orders for the release of the prisoner on the terms he proposed. The Frenchman departed and was with his mother when she died, and then he kept faith and went back to his prison. It is pleasant to see that the Kaiser in the midst of the vast responsibility and toll with which he is charged takes time and thought for such acts of mercy and human kindness as this.—Baltimore Sun.

Fires From Carelessness.
As a sensible contribution to the literature of the cigarette as a starter of fires, big and little, let us recommend the following, from the Milwaukee Evening Wisconsin: "The announcement that a recent $700,000 fire was due to the dropping of a cigarette into a rubbish heap is not so severe a condemnation of the despised 'cotton-wool' as of the man who smoked it." It is quite likely that the man who is careless enough to drop a lighted cigarette where it may cause a fire would be careless enough in some other respect to cause a fire or some other damage.—Rochester Union and Advertiser.

Telling Him.
"And you lay right there while I told you there was a burglar in the house. You ought to be ashamed of yourself."
"Huh! If you'd been a man what would you have done?"
"The very thing you would have done if you had been a man."

IN THE TRENCHES

By DOROTHY BLACKMORE.

(Copyright, 1915, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

"The enemy is in your trenches again, sis," cried Teddy Herbert to his sister, who had not yet come down to breakfast.

"Dear, dear!" he heard her exclaim, and then he heard hurried footsteps and saw Mattie run downstairs, pick up a coat that was lying on a chair in the hall, and slam the front door after her.

Four sixty-foot trenches lay open at the side of the Herbert home, and Mattie was running back and forth chasing away the neighbors' chickens. The fresh fertilizer which had been placed so carefully in each of the trenches was scattered everywhere, and dismay was written all over the girl's face when she turned to come into the house.

"It's a shame!" she said, as she took her place at the table, breathing hard, but looking as fresh as a rose after her exercise in the invigorating March air. "And this one year when I had counted so much on my sweet peas and have followed directions so carefully. What shall I do, mother?"

"Shoot the chickens," suggested Teddy.

"This isn't the war, Teddy," his sister said, squelching. "These are sweet pea trenches."

"I pass," said Teddy, getting up from the table. "It's not my funeral, Mat. So long!" And with that he was gone.

Mattie and her mother were finishing breakfast in silence when they heard the knocker on the front door.

"I'll go," said Mattie, as her mother started to rise.

"I'm George Davis—next door, you know. I just saw you chasing my chickens out of your garden."

"Come in, please," said Mattie, opening wide the door to the young man who was introducing himself.

"You see, I've come to stay with my brother, next door, for a while, since my firm saw fit to cut down expenses by letting me out of a job. He's never at home and my sister is busy with the baby, so the chickens have been in your trenches owing to my folly. I apologize and will see that it does not happen again."

"Oh, don't worry!" Mattie hastened to say. "Of course, I—well, I have worked so hard this spring, and it has been rather disconcerting."

"Disconcerting!" interrupted Davis. "That is polite. If I had been in your place I think I would have blessed the whole household of neighbors. Did you?" he laughed.

Mattie joined him. "Perhaps you would call it a blessing. I hadn't thought of it in that light. But now you won't worry, will you? I'll get out this morning and try to plant the seeds, and then—"

"Then if my chickens dig them up I needn't show my face again in this neighborhood?"

Mattie nodded, laughing. "That's it," she said.

With a few more words of apology George Davis left, and Mattie Herbert knew that she liked him and was glad that he was to be a neighbor.

That morning, when she was busy out of doors, trying to repair the damage done to her trenches, George Davis looked over the hedge which separated the gardens. "It is I who should be doing that," he ventured.

"You may help," Mattie said, quickly.

A few hours' work with her assured him that Mattie Herbert was not conventional, that she was the most original and charming girl he had met.

Spring came and went, and June brought the looked-for blossoms in the Herberts' garden. The four sixty-foot trenches were a riot of bloom, and some stems held four blossoms of gigantic proportions.

Mattie and her mother and even Teddy picked sweet peas night and morning, and Mattie herself attended to the shipping. It was then that Mattie called upon her neighbor for help.

"I can't offer you much in return for your help, which I need badly," the girl said, frankly, "but I think if you are still out of a position you and I could do a small business together with your chickens and our ground."

"I don't need any pay for helping you," Davis said earnestly. "I should love to do it."

Later they worked out a scheme of successive raising of table commodities for which they knew of ready and accessible markets. And while they worked on this scheme they fell in love with each other.

One day he told her of his love and of what he had hoped her answer might be.

"My answer is yes, of course," Mattie said. "But we must continue to be partners in business as well as in our home. I—well, I'm glad the war brought to you and to me the necessity for earning our living together. For it was the exigencies of the war situation that brought us together, wasn't it?" she asked.

"Yes, it was the enemy in your trenches, dear," he said, laughing.

Placing the Responsibility, "I'd get along better with my dancing," said Uncle Flopsie, "if I could get hold of the right tune."

"What's the matter?"

"There isn't a piece in the whole music box that doesn't get out of time to the way I dance."

Col. Roosevelt Makes Sensation

Chicago, April 10.—Publication of the fact that Theodore Roosevelt had written a letter denouncing the Woman's Peace propaganda caused a sharp discussion among leaders of the movement here today. The letter reposed in the custody of Mrs. William I. Thomas, secretary of the woman's peace party, and she refused to allow its publication.

"There were sentences in the letter that it would be unwise to make public," said Mrs. Thomas. "Although Col. Roosevelt has said that he would be delighted to have the letter published, yet I think it unwise to make it public."

The missive which aroused the discussion was sent to Mrs. George Rublee of Washington. One report had it that the colonel declared that pacifists in general constituted a menace to the future welfare of the United States.
